SENATOR MEDILL McCORMICK

The senior senator from Illinois, Medill McCormick, has performed distinguished service at Washington. He wrote the national budget bill and brought about its enactment, to the great and lasting benefit of the tax-ridden people. He is leading the fight for a national child labor law. He is leading the fight for a navigable waterway from the great lakes to the gulf. On his record he well deserves re-nomination by his party.

Senator McCormick's influence in Washington is great and his opportunities for usefulness far exceed those that would be within the reach of any man newly elected to the senate, however well qualified the latter may be.

STATE'S ATTORNEY A. V. SMITH

Col. A. V. Smith, is making a lone fight. Standing on his own two legs against bitter opposition to law enforcement he emerges from a four-year term with the respect of every law-abiding citizen in the county and yes all over the state.

Lake County stands out today as the Rock of Gibraltar in this chosen official, bribing, bootlegging, beer running age, despite the fact that it is a next door neighbor to Cook county and Chicago.

Col. Smith has been conjoled, threatened and pleaded with to let up on his relentless warfare against law breaking—but to no avail. His friends have left him, but he has made more—of the right kind.

With every opportunity to "clean up," A. V. Smith has turned down offer after offer that would have broken the morale of any but the character of the present state's attorney. There is no half way in the states attorney's job today. Either you get it or you don't. A. V. Smith happens to be one of the don't kind, and when the public is fortunate to have a public official that is bullet-proof they should hold on to him. Col. A. V. Smith should be re-elected. If you believe in law enforcement cast your vote for him next Tuesday. Bolshevism may come soon enough, but law and order as long as we can.

GOVERNOR LEN SMALL

Thursday the people of Illinois practically express their wish for the Governor of Illinois for the next four years. The two Republican nominees are Thurlow G. Eslington and Gov. Len Small.

Eslington, a protegee of the Chicago Tribune and the standards they carry, is practically an unknown man in this section. Governor Small needs no introduction.

Eslington's political career consists chiefly of the minority of his home town and senatorial experience.

Governor Small is out to succeed himself. He has been governor of the state for four years. He has fought for and obtained passage of many bills to the interest of the working people. He has fought for good roads FOR THE COUNTRY and has succeeded in forcing a road building combine to lower its price on hard roads from $40,000 to less than $30,000 a mile. His record against big business is wonderful.

Governor Small has fought a clean fight. His campaign has been devoid of any "mud-slinging." He has gone before the people of Illinois on his merits for re-election.

On the other hand, the campaign waged by Eslington has been anything but clean. His backers have spared nothing to place their candidate in the light of the public eye. The Chicago Tribune has borne the brunt of this attack. They have not hesitated to defame the Governors good name and character with some of the vilest and most malicious propaganda that has ever been thrown into any campaign. The World's Greatest Newspaper has carried its nefarious campaign to such an extent that it has been fittingly dubbed "The World's Greatest Nuisance."

It is conceded that the Tribune has not for one minute succeeded in convincing the country folks as to their sincerity to get rid of the present Governor for the good of the state. Nor has it convinced us that the man they propose to put in the gubernatorial chair will be to the best interest of the state.

Why Eslington should be picked (Continued on page 8)

Car of Lime Unloaded at High School

A carload of 44 tons of ground limestone, secured by the Agricultural Club of the Antioch Township High School was unloaded here last week. The lime was secured for the patrons of the school.

Frank Kennedy took 15 tons, Chas. Rudolph 15 tons, Guy Hughes 5 tons, Chas. Alvors 3 tons, Paul Viegens 3 tons, Alec Hughes 3 tons.

Most of this lime is being placed on tested soil, and its benefits are to be watched closely. It is hoped that its application may show up sufficiently in comparison with the not lime soil to organize a summer auto tour for the farmers to visit each of the places where it has been applied.

C. L. Kuttel, of the school is to make a search this summer, with the view of finding whether it would not be advisable to develop a local lime grinding station, which it at all possible would save the farmers hundreds of dollars on freight shipments annually. There is some belief at present, that a local lime crusher may be operated.

Charles Shaw, Hebron Farmer, a Suicide

Charles Shaw, bachelor farmer, residing southeast of Hebron, committed suicide by taking a teaspoonful of Paris Green. For about thirty-six hours he suffered every agony and although every attention was given him the poison which he had taken proved fatal and he passed away, Thursday evening. Mr. Shaw had become despondent over ill health and no doubt the recent illness and death of his brother, James Shaw, and a sister, preyed upon his mind and his decision to end his life came after due consideration. In fact he told those attending him that he was tired of living and wanted to die.

Charles Shaw was born in Canada, December 2, 1851, and passed away, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, March 20, 1924, at the age of 71 years, 3 months and 18 days.

The deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Shaw and was one of a family of four sons and two daughters, Esmond and Albert, of Peotone, Ill., and Mary Evan of Farmore, Ill., survive; Mrs. Eliza J. Angus passed away, December 25, 1923, James W. Shaw passed away February 6, 1924.

Funeral services were held at Peotone, Sunday morning at 9:30 in charge of Rev. A. E. Blomberg and interment was in the cemetery there.

Writes Serial Story; to Start Next Week

Robert Stend

Acknowledged literary spokesman of the plains regions of western Canada, Robert Stend has depicted the romance and charm of the country in a number of novels and volumes of verse.

He spent his boyhood on a homestead in Manitoba and at ten years of age was corresponding for the nearest country newspaper. The budget of his contributions was mainly such items as "Mr. Ferrier has painted his buggy shed," or "Mr. Manning is building a lean-to to his kitchen." So humble may be the beginning of literature!

From corresponding he became a reporter, printer and finally owner of several small newspapers, judiciously trying, between ventures, two or three mercantile occupations to make sure of the right calling. He made no mistake when he adopted the writing profession. He is the pre-eminent novelist and poet of the plains of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan. His recent romance, "Zen of the Y. D." is the new serial offering of this paper.

Barnum Right Again!

Six out of ten merchants believe "their town is different" and that advertising does not produce results as is done in some other town. All bunk—pure, simple bunk! The greatest and most successful advertisers in the world are circus people. Step into a big show print house and you will find their papers and posters prepared months before the season opens—and it's all alike. They see no difference between towns in Georgia and towns in Vermont. They use the same advertising in New York that is used in California—all towns and all people are very much alike. What is the lesson?

Lake Villa Youth Is Charged with Attack

Irving Pester, about 21 years old, is being sought today by Lake Villa and county authorities after breaking from the Lake Villa jail early Sunday morning, where he was being detained pending issuance of a warrant charging him with attacking Mrs. Tony Leonard, 21, of that village.

It is charged that he broke into the James Leonard residence and sought to attack Mrs. Tony Leonard, whose husband was away at the time. Mrs. Leonard was in bed at the time when Pester entered her room. In the dark she first thought it was her husband, but when he laid down on the bed without removing his clothing, Mrs. Leonard became suspicious, turned on the light and discovered the intruder, it is charged.

Pester tore Mrs. Leonard's night clothing, it is charged. She screamed for help and then grappled with Pester in an effort to prevent him from escaping until the arrival of the authorities.

He succeeded in breaking away but later was taken into custody by Constable Fred Burke of Lake Villa and lodged in the village jail.

The alleged intrusion took place about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Pester escaped from the village jail early Sunday morning.

A warrant was sworn out at Lake Villa by Mrs. Leonard charging Pester with house breaking. It is claimed that Pester has been in trouble before and broke his parole some time ago. He is being sought by the authorities.

Antioch merchants have instituted a bargain day for Saturday. The merchants offer the housewives' bargains out of their regular stock. These bargains will appear on a page by themselves. The thrifty housewife will do well to read this entire page over. The buying public must realize that the country merchant can not afford to offer anything but the best, and when they offer bargains out of their regular stock the purchaser can depend on it that he is not getting any job lot stuff, but absolutely the best that the merchant can buy for the money.

CHAPTER XXI

A Chance for Another.

"Mrs. Penfield!"
"Yes, come right in, Mrs. Wipple. I only got to finish washing out this—"
"Oh, I can't stop, Mrs. Penfield. I just heard this here story 'bout your movin'!"

"Yes," said Mrs. Penfield happily. "I'm going to move tomorrow into Mrs. Sanders' flat. Ain't it dandy?"
Mrs. Wipple shook her head in bewilderment. "I don't know. Seems like you're playin' a trick on us somehow—you been so kinder poor and low-down and ev'rything. Josiah says he don't think it's fair for folks that've been poor to suddenly come into money. 'Steard of lookin' down on 'em, he's got to all of a sudden look up and—"

"Oh," laughed Mrs. Penfield, "tell him not to twist his neck on 'count of me. I ain't coming up very far."

"It's quite a change," sniffed Mrs. Wipple. "Why, you're goin' to be as good as any of us, ain't you?"

Mrs. Penfield's brown eyes danced. "I wouldn't go so far as to claim that. But I'm glad to have more room for the children, and things more home-like. It's wonderful to have an income. Didn't seem as if there was any chance for it to happen."

"You say it's from a laundry," suggested Mrs. Wipple.

"Yes—a formula I'd worked out for washing colored clo'es and silks and—"

"I put starch in the water," insinuated Mrs. Wipple eagerly.

Mrs. Penfield smiled. "Isn't starch. It's a mixture I never heard of anybody's using."

"It's strange how smart you was, and didn't any of us s'pect it," remarked Mrs. Wipple tartly. "Ma, I think of lots of things, but of course I never tried to sell 'em. Josiah earnin' big money the way he does, I don't have to."

"No, surely not," agreed Mrs. Penfield, gently.

Mrs. Wipple turned to go. "Well, I'll run in just as soon as you get your nippie boxes moved. I'll want to see how you're gettin' on. And say, Mrs. Penfield, even if your stock goes up, you won't never forget what close neighbors we been, will you?"

"No, Mrs. Wipple, never," promised Mrs. Penfield warmly.

Amusedly she admitted to herself that Mrs. Wipple had not been far wrong about the nippie boxes, which had served the family for multifarious purposes during the months that were past. It was different now—or would be tomorrow. Mrs. Penfield had decided to purchase a few pieces of furniture, to be paid for in installments and to form the nucleus of a real home, real in appearance as well as in spirit.

She was about to set forth on this errand when a man in livery turned the crank in the erstwhile barn-door at Number 47 and delivered a letter to Mrs. Penfield. She opened the letter wondering and read it twice before she could comprehend its meaning. It was written on heavy white paper, with Mrs. Weatherstone's address engraved.

"Dear Mrs. Penfield," it ran. "Will you do me the honor to accept a few articles which I have gathered up around the house in the course of our re-furnishing and shall send to you tomorrow? Think of them, please, as the co-operation of one mother with another for those who have no mother. If at any time you should hear of anyone else who is doing for forlorn children a service similar to your own, will you kindly let me know?"

"Sincerely yours,

"ANNETTE WEATHERSTONE."

Mrs. Penfield dropped the letter and sat for a long time, thinking. "Mrs. Weatherstone's got real feelings," was the thought uppermost in her mind. "She knows I wouldn't accept anything for myself, and she knows I can't refuse things for children that ain't my own. Between the two, I don't see's I can do anything—except to thank her best I know how."

Mrs. Penfield would never forget the lean days between Christmas and New Year's. As never before she had realized how frail a shield she was protecting three children from want and suffering. A slight disturbance in the established routine could reduce them to immediate distress, and as rapidly as possible she must accumulate an emergency fund which would make a recurrence of those days impossible.

She was realizing, too, that with every year now, the children would legitimately require a greater outlay, if they were to have the equipment to which they were entitled—the ordinary advantages, the training for some particular work, the clothing which could not always be homemade. Both at home and here in The Custard Cup she had dealt with young children; she had not by experience struggled with the increasing demands with increases in years.

Mrs. Penfield gave up her shopping plan and took off her hat. She must wait till the nature of the "few articles" was disclosed before she could select the things which would be most needed.

She had, however, taken the latter so literally that she was wholly unprepared for the arrival of a small van the following morning. It was evident that Mrs. Weatherstone's courteous eye had taken in the outfit of apple boxes as thoroughly as had the more critical gaze of Mrs. Wipple. It was also evident that she had made her selections with more discrimination than had occurred with the assignments previously bestowed upon Number 47.

The four beds and the bedding—also the four mattresses, so comfortable that they logically necessitated the alarm clock which was found ticking in a small box—were suspiciously new, but everything else bore evidence of having been used, a fact which made the gift the pleasanter.

It was astonishing how quickly and adequately these furnishings were fitted into the flat which had been Mrs. Sanders'. The two large plain rugs in the living-room and dining-room, the small rugs in the bedrooms, the beds, a small dining table, plain chairs, rocking chairs, to say nothing of a set of blue dishes and a box of plated silver! There were curtains that could be changed to fit; dresses and coats that could be remade. There were four pictures in plain frames. When Mrs. Penfield had unwrapped them, she stood back with her finger pressing out the smile on her lips.

"All right," she acknowledged under her breath. "As Lettie would say, I get you, Mrs. Weatherstone."

The pictures went up, and the thin can labels went down together with the lifelike bananas and the vigorous old man who advocated cigarettes. The installation of Bonnie Geraldine was one of the first ceremonies to take place. She and her winter quarters were transferred in toto, and so skillfully that she seemed not to know that she had moved at all, which is the greatest tribute any hen can pay to a change of abode. It was far otherwise with the young Willus or Caesar Penfield. He was wild with excitement and had to be forcibly detained in the new back yard until he should take a sunnier, less active view of the life of luxury about to unfold around him.

"Lucky thing we've got him, though," observed Crink. "I couldn't never hold up my head in a stylish place like this 'less we had us a nice dog."

"I ain't so bowled over," declared Lettie, with an assumption of great carelessness. "It's dandy, but we been livin' fine ever since I froze on to this family."

"Children," said Mrs. Penfield briskly, "you're fit in the world a step or two, and there's responsibilities connected with it. Higher up the ladder you go, the more you got to stretch your moral nature. Now there's one thing you plumb sure got to do from now on. You got to give up prowlin'."

"Oh," scoffed Crink, vastly relieved, "I 'bout gave that up when I got a steady job a couple hours a day."

"I don't prowl," contributed Thad, his soft eyelashes trying out from his widened eyes.

Lettie was silent.

"I mean you, too, Lettie," continued Mrs. Penfield. "From now on, you can't prowl; you can't be dragging in stuff; you can't scrounge over dumps."

"Why, Penzie," cried the child in dismay, "all my life—I've had to—and I got the habit—and—"

"You've got to give it up," repeated Mrs. Penfield firmly. "You'll have lots of other things to do—study and read and sew and cook. You must remember that you got a fine home now, and a bed to sleep in, and grand clo'es to wear, and heaps to eat—and you got to live up to it."

Lettie stared at her solemnly out of wide black eyes. It was evident that the wreckage of the world was calling to her, with the allure of infinite variety, with the promise of endless possibilities.

Her thin chest heaved. She threw out her arm in a gesture of utter renunciation.

"All right," she gulped. "I'll do it if it kills me. I gotta stay with you, Penzie."

It was while Mrs. Penfield was exulting with Crink over the possession of a front window, which gave a charming view of the driveway and the pepper tree, that she saw Uncle Jerry coming rapidly into The Custard Cup, in his arms an enormous sheaf of long-stemmed roses, glowing red through the thin paper covering. She lifted the window.

"Oh, Uncle Jerry," she called, "come right in and see ev'rything. It's just—"

"Well—oh—well, Carline," stammered Uncle Jerry, "I'm in kind of a hurry. I—I'll come in later. I—I got some news for you."

She looked into his genial face, ruddy with embarrassed color under the tan. "Oh, I know," she said softly. "You've fixed it up with—"

"Oh, Uncle Jerry," She Called.

He nodded happily. "Say, ain't I lucky? 'Cause she's the real thing—and so—so fine! I didn't scarcely believe she'd take a rough old lumberman like me."

"I'm delighted she did," responded Mrs. Penfield warmly. "I'll be glad to see both of you having a home."

She watched him go on up Miss Haggood's steps, carrying his shoulders proudly, bearing flowers to the gentle lady who had put aside her dreams to live the life of the present. Then she closed the window and went back to her work.

There was to be a supper that in itself would be a house-warming. With her usual forethought Mrs. Penfield had told the members of her family that it would be a fine spread—this time with supplementary details that added overwhelmingly to the weight of her statement. There were to be muffins and honey for the first course; and for the second, a tapioca pudding.

It was only the middle of the afternoon, but preparations were already under way. Crink had been dispatched to the store to get the honey. Mrs. Penfield was setting the table in the dining-room. From the window she could catch a glimpse of the hills, kissed green by the recent rains. Last week it had been winter; today it was spring. With the charming caprice that is California's, January had said: "I was trying to give you some winter, but I couldn't hold to it."

Mrs. Penfield's heart was full of thankfulness as she set out the dishes and placed the silver. She even arranged a centerpiece, a small vase containing a ten rose from a bush that Mrs. Sanders had raised. At last the children were to have the surroundings that help to nurture the home feeling, a feeling which persists if it is incorporated in one's childhood, but which is never built up in exactly the same way if that childhood passes without it. Thoughts of other days, thoughts of the other home that this one called up, knocked persistently against Mrs. Penfield's brain, but she refused to let them enter. Like Miss Haggood, she would live in the present.

The pudding was made. Lettie was beating the white of the egg for the frosting.

"Jolly, ain't this fun!" she exclaimed. "I've always wondered how it felt to beat an egg. I could keep at it till kingdom come."

Crink burst in at the kitchen door. "Oh, Penzie," he cried, "ev'rybody's so excited down to the store. I got to go right back, but I had to bring the here's the honey—and tell you quick."

Mrs. Penfield took down the can of sugar from the shelf above the sink. "What is it, Crink? What's happened?"

He stood in front of her, breathing hard, his eyes shining with eagerness. "Oh, there's been a terrible accident, and the father and mother were killed, but the baby wasn't—and—"

"Crink, what are you talking about?" demanded Mrs. Penfield in dismay.

"Why, Penzie, the baby. Ev'rybody's talking 'bout it to the store. It ain't got nobody left—not nobody. Its folks wasn't related to any other folks. And ev'rybody that comes in is talking 'bout it." Crink gasped for breath, but jerked out his statements with wild gesticulations. "Ev'rybody's saying what'll become of the baby, and I'll have to go to a 'stultion, and so I thought mebbe—"

Lettie reluctantly relinquished the eggbeater, but zealously advocated the infant. "O Penzie, let's! I'd be such fun! Golly, I'd love to have it—"

Mrs. Penfield stirred sugar into the beaten white and spread the frosting over the pudding. "What's your idea, Crink?" she asked, as she slid the dish into the oven for the final browning.

"Well, I thought mebbe we could take it. You see, we halo't got any baby now—Thad's growing up so fast. And I'd like—"

"Oh, can't we have it, please, Penzie," begged Lettie. "A baby's just what we need. There'd be a heap more variety if—"

"Yes, it'd be a good way to get variety," agreed Mrs. Penfield, looking from one eager face to the other. "I expect you're right. Fact is, I been kind o' worried all the afternoon, thinking how fine we got ev'rything, and how much we got to do with, and how easy it's going to be. Why, I ain't got a thing to do now but keep the house and do the washings and look after you three children; I don't have to watch The Custard Cup at all any more. I know I ain't going to feel right if ev'rything's so easy."

"Oh, then you will— Oh, Penzie, won't you hurry and get there 'fore anybody else wants it?"

"Land, Crink, there ain't never such a rush as that. But I'll change my dress right now and we'll go down— wherever it is. My goodness, I can't wait myself to get hold of that blessed baby."

"Ev'rybody says it's a fine one," put in Crink enthusiastically. "It's healthy, you know—and ev'rything."

"Oh, we'll have such fun raising it!" said Mrs. Penfield briskly. "I just know it's going to work out grand."

This Man Wouldn't Stay Down

HE was putting in long hours at monotonous unskilled work. His small pay scarcely lasted from one week to the next. Pleasures were few and far between and he couldn't save a cent.

He was down—but he wouldn't stay down! He saw other men promoted, and he made up his mind that what they could do he could do. Then he found the reason they were promoted was because they had special training—an expert knowledge of some one line. So he made up his mind that he would get that kind of training.

He marked and mailed to Scranton a coupon like the one on the right. That was his first step upward. It brought him just the information he was looking for. He found he could get the training he needed right at home in the hours after supper. From that time on he spent part of his spare time studying.

The first reward was not long in coming—an increase in salary. Then came another. Then he was made Assistant Manager. Now he is Manager with an income that means independence and all the comforts and pleasures that make life worth living.

It just shows what a man with ambition can do. And this man is only one out of hundreds of thousands who have climbed the same steps to success with the help of the International Correspondence Schools.

What about you? Are you satisfied merely to hang on where you are or would you, too, like to have a real job and real money? It's entirely up to you. You don't have to stay down. You can climb to the position you want in the work you like best. Yes, you can! The I. C. S. is ready and anxious to come to you, wherever you are, with the very help you need.

Surely when you have an opportunity that means so much, you can't afford to let another priceless hour pass without at least finding out about it. And the way to do that is easy—without cost, without obligating yourself in any way, mark and mail this coupon.

The most important matter, it appears, is the selection of a suitable site—one that is on a traveled route. Sheridan road, it is felt, would make an ideal location but it might be difficult to obtain a desirable site. Many tourists stopped off in Electric Park last year and there are some who favor this site. It is pointed out that if a few more facilities were placed there that it would be advantageous in many ways.

Tourist camping sites are being established in many cities throughout the country and they have been found to be very successful as they attract a large number of tourists.

Waukegan is keenly alive to the advertising possibilities of a properly equipped camp and for this reason it appears that definite steps will be taken before the season is much farther advanced.

The Lake County Probate court held a busy session last Monday in which a large number of minor cases were taken up and disposed of as well as the case of the estate of Dr. John C. Foley, former city physician of Waukegan. The same action was taken in the estates of Jennie French Campbell, Florence M. Perry, Catherine Strong and Wm. Carmen all of Waukegan.

In the estates of George F. Roberts and Charles H. Lange of Grayslake and Amelia Stewart of Waukegan were closed and the administratrix in Vorgel Horton, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horton is on the gain after going through a severe case of pneumonia.

The moving picture "The Net" given by the Girl Scouts at the Crystal theater last Friday night was very much of a success in spite of the bad weather.

Mrs. Mary White of Waukegan visited several days the past week with her sister, Mrs. Nelson Pollen, and while here she called on other relatives and friends.

Art Schuelter was a Chicago visitor over Sunday.

A scraper on the stretch of road not completed at Lake Villa would put this road in fair condition. The soaking received last week has put this stretch of road in as bad shape as it could be, and yet it is possible. A little work there will make a fair road.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kuhaupt visited at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Ray Thompson on Sunday.

Miss Deedle Tiffany visited over Saturday and Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Tiffany in Waukegan.

Ivab and Virginia Radtke and girl friend of Kenosha were home over Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Radtke.

Mr. Merrill is on the sick list.

Dea Dapre of Delevan is visiting at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. D. A. Williams.

Mrs. Charles Vykuta is getting along nicely at her home here.

Mr. Vizeusa has been quite sick the past week.

Clarence Miller is on the sick list.

Mrs. J. R. Cribb, who has been quite sick the past two weeks is very much better.

Arden, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Van Patten is very sick with pneumonia.

Mrs. Chas. Ettlinger returned to her home in Chicago on Wednesday after a few days visit with her sister, Mrs. Sophie Martin and her niece, Mrs. Joe Horton.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dalgard is very sick with pneumonia.

Several of the girl friends of Hazel Webb went over and called on her last Sunday taking flowers from the green house.

Hazel Webb met with quite a serious accident on last Thursday as she was riding her pony home from school. She had been up to the Rooschlein home and had started for her home and had gone as far as the John Dapre home when the pony in some way fell and threw her off. She was picked up unconscious and taken to the home of Dr. Warriner where she received medical treatment. She remained unconscious several hours before she recovered. She remained at the home of Dr. Warriner until the next day before she was able to be removed to her home. At present she is doing very nicely, although she has a badly sprained ankle besides many other bruises.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

What many towns need is not so much new industries to make new money flow in, as home town loyalty to keep the old money from flowing out.

START WORK TO COMPLETE ROUTE 21 AT GRAYSLAKE

The Pekus Construction company's foreman are on the ground making preliminary arrangements and doing preliminary work in getting started on the construction of the Avon section of Route 21. A number of men arrived from South, Iowa, last Friday. The men came by machine and left their home Monday. They say the greater part of the time was spent on Iowa's dirt roads, but that when the Illinois cement roads came in sight they were making wonderful progress.

Work is now under way on the grade, some culvert work is being done and plans are under way for additional shelter for cement, near the plant in Grayslake.

No time will be lost after weather conditions permit in pouring concrete at the North end. The contractors want to complete the entire job early in the summer, but more especially want to complete the first two miles and have them open for traffic before July fourth.

The Edward building is being altered and will be put in shape as a boarding house to accommodate the employees of the Pekus Engineering and Construction company. There will be in the neighborhood of 60 men working on concrete road construction. In order that they have a place to live, Mr. Pekus has made arrangements with Mr. George Norris to board them. The rear of the building is being fitted up as a kitchen and the front will be a dining room, divided off with a partition. The upstairs will be used as sleeping quarters. This will give the men a nice home, and no doubt they will feel at home, being all together and interested in the same work.

Alterations have been made at the mixer. It was found that the hopper in which the sand, gravel and cement were mixed was not large enough to make a good load for the trucks. The old hopper has been torn away and a new one is being constructed there.

Leslie N. George Campaigns Aeroally.

Modern science has solved the difficulties of the present-day political campaign. And the aeroplane, which has been used to drop everything from bombs to government mail, was called upon to distribute political literature in this district.

To Leslie N. George of Waukegan, candidate for state senator in the eighth district, goes the credit of revolutionizing the methods of campaign.

Ray Paddock, supervisor of Wauconda township and Lyle Broughton went to the Wallace Evans stock farm at St. Charles last Wednesday and returned with the pheasants, which were turned loose on various farms in that vicinity.

Mr. Stratton has also purchased 30,000 pheasant eggs and has promised all the eggs that may be required by people who will agree to turn the young pheasants loose as soon as they are able to take care of themselves after they are hatched. By this method it is hoped to restock the country with pheasants, which bird is rapidly becoming extinct.

"DULCY" WAS FILMED IN YOSEMITE VALLEY

Part of "Dulcy," which comes to the Crystal theater on Sunday and is Constance Talmadge's latest comedy of married life, was filmed in the Yosemite.

The early sequences of "Dulcy" were made in the Mohave desert near Needles, Calif., and Barstow, where Mohave and Wapchal Indians were used.

Vernal Falls, near Yosemite, was used for the sensational scenes where a young bride, played by Constance Talmadge, attempts suicide over the falls after a trifling quarrel with her hubby.

"Dulcy" was written by Care Connolly and George S. Kaufman for the New York stage, where for many months it was one of the most popular successes. It was purchased by Mr. Schenk for Constance, Aalta Lees and John Emerson were entrusted with the task of writing the continuity for it.

"Dulcy" was filmed with even greater lavishness than "East is West." Scenes showing mountain cabins, of Adirondack massiveness, a Fifth Avenue home, and exteriors at Dig Bear Lake are included in the photoplay.

A. V. SMITH

Candidate for State's Attorney

Primaries April 8, 1924

An open letter to the voters of Lake County

I am a candidate for nomination on the Republican ticket to succeed myself as State's Attorney of Lake County.

On account of my heavy court duties incidental to the proper administration of the State's Attorney's office, it is going to be impossible for me to personally see as many of the voters as I should like to in the approaching campaign.

In again submitting my candidacy to you, I fully appreciate that I must stand or fall on the record that I have made in this important office during the past three years. I have severed friendships and been in jeopardy even in my home through the performance of my duties prescribed in the oath that I swore to uphold, and it has not been an easy undertaking. I have prosecuted those charged with law violation and crime, fearlessly and honestly, with but one thought—to make Lake County, your home; a safe place to live. I go before the voters no richer in this world's goods than that which was prescribed by law, and I leave you to judge what it might have been. There can be no excuse for dishonesty in the performance of a public duty, and that has been the thought I have carried through my public career and it shall be the slogan of my office if renominated and elected and again entrusted with the business of Lake County as its chief law enforcing officer. I have no apology to make for any action taken by me in my official capacity. I feel that I have represented the interests of the best citizenship and the best thought of our County. I know that I have worked hard and that I have made an honest effort to diligently serve you.

If you feel that on my record and this brief statement you can endorse the administration of my office, I shall appreciate any expression of friendship towards my candidacy for reelection, and if you care to I should like very much to have you drop me a line and make a frank statement of your views or any suggestion that would be of interest to my welfare.

I sincerely hope that before the campaign closes, I shall have the privilege of meeting you personally, but should I not be so fortunate, I want you to know that your efforts in my behalf will be very much appreciated.

Sincerely yours

A. V. SMITH

Outlines Plan For Business Club Monday

Chicago, the 3rd largest city. It isn't as tho we were 55 miles from Lansing, Mich. or Sioux City, Ia., but were just out of Chicago, and according to the plans of the Greater Chicago regional committee, all the territory within a radius of 60 miles from Chicago will within not many years be suburban property of Chicago. Is that all, no. Antioch is the hub of the lake region of Northern Illinois with a dozen or more lakes within a distance of from 2 to 5 miles as well as the Fox river a Waterway of many miles. The lots beds of which there are only three in the world and we have one of the three. Then again, we are just midway from either Chicago or Milwaukee, 20 miles from Kenosha, 20 miles from Waukegan, all four of these cities, booming, thriving cities with a population seeking recreation in the country. And, most important of all the Lake Region of Northern Illinois, the great playground with the natural attractions, adjacent to any other large city in the United States.

And, what are we doing toward broadcasting this information. Comparatively nothing. As individuals some of us have advertised this section, because we were either operating a summer resort hotel or selling summer resort property. Gentlemen, Antioch has grown and become what it is today not from the efforts of the business interests or its citizenry but to its Geographical location, its close proximity to Chicago, and the mouth to ear advertising of Antioch, by the people of Chicago, who either own summer homes or stop at the various summer resort hotels in this region.

And, if this section has prospered as it has without our help, think of what can be done, if we will but unite in our efforts, put our shoulder to the wheel, and boost our home town.

But, we must unite, one man or a dozen men cannot put it across. The day of the one man institution has passed. There must be a concentration of our activities, and by all means co-operation among business houses as well as the citizens of Antioch. Success and prosperity for Antioch and this lake region means success and prosperity for us all, business man or workman. It matters not.

The day of going about worrying how the other fellow is getting by or predicting failure for every new venture is passed. The fact that he is getting by should be a source of satisfaction to us, his townspeople, for as his success reflects to the credit of Antioch, likewise his failure would reflect to the business opportunities of Antioch.

Gossip is cheap conversation, scandal is malicious. We should not indulge in or pass it on, for we well know that oftentimes the repeating and constant repetition of a morsel of gossip can and does do irreparable harm to an individual or business firm. The day of the monkey wrench thrower or knocker, has passed. The progressive town hasn't room for him and the progressive citizen has not the time to listen to him.

Now then, a word for the Merchants. It is your desire to keep business at home. Personally, I believe you do keep the major portion of the village business at home. In fact I do not know of any other town of 1600 inhabitants and I don't believe you do that can boast of the various business and professional activities as Antioch, totaling 74 in business and professional, and we must not forget the churches which total 4 in number. All evidence of Antioch's prosperity and doubtless partially due to your advertising in your home paper.

I want to say a word of praise for the Antioch News—and it isn't solicited either. The editors are always on the alert, ready to help and boost Antioch. A news paper is virtually the organ of the business men and townspeople. Our paper merits our whole hearted support.

As an evidence as to whether Antioch has progressed within the past two years, let us review the changes that have taken place in the business section only.

Concrete road: Enough said, who would go back to your old monument of dirt on the Main street.

New home of the Antioch Retail Market.

New Home for Somerville Bakery and Restaurant.

Reichmann's Wholesale and Retail Bakery establishment.

An additional Exclusive Gents finishing store.

Pach's new Confectionery shop.

Ross's New Restaurant.

Plumbing and Tinner shop opened.

Three new Auto Agencies established.

Two New Gas Stations.

Pollock's Green House and the remodeling of the old opera house block into three separate attractive buildings. The Illinois Bell Telephone company made a survey of future prospects in this vicinity and installed an additional switchboard to provide the telephone needs for the next five years, and, at a cost to them I believe of $15,000.00. Just another evidence of their faith in this section.

There are a number of activities that the Antioch Business Club will engage in, and one of the first, in fact I would suggest that it be the first to consider the Railroad Service given us by the Soo Line. We all know it isn't dependable, in fact anything but satisfactory. Complaints have been registered with the R. R. Company, grievance committees have at different times gone to Chicago to confer with the R. R. officials, only to be handled in a suave manner, promised relief, and then followed by a letter stating it is impossible for them to do anything for us, but promising relief for the coming year and the coming year is always a repetition of our experience the previous year.

And, this treatment and service handed to a town which officials state is the best paying station between Chicago and Minneapolis. The Soo Line does not hesitate to exercise every prerogative they have as is evidenced by their recent action in relation to tickets, not only working hardships on our local resort hotel owners, but making it next to impossible thru their exorbitant rates for a resident of Antioch to commute unless he purchase a ticket for every member of the family and likewise depriving us of the frequent visits of relatives and friends in Chicago do to these rates. The ban has been lifted somewhat due to the work of a summer resident Mr. Witt of Channel Lake, who notified the Soo Line that all his freight and any other freight he could control would be diverted to other roads. Gentlemen, we have a whip in our hands and a good one. VIZ. Go on the Mat with Soo Line, right them hard, insist on a dependable service, or stand in back of our Village President and Trustees to a man and have the Village exercise its prerogative, by compelling all the trains to slow down to the rate of speed governed by law and compel the R. R. Company to erect gates at our grade crossings and maintain gatesmen every hour of the day.

Action must be taken, Antioch and the resort hotel owners cater to the summer colony and the service given us now is so inadequate that it is impossible for a Chicago business man to live with his family at the lakes and commute daily. Get better service and you will see how the Chicago business man will commute from this section as he does from the various sections reached by the St. Paul, the Northwestern, Milwaukee, Barrington and Elgin divisions, as well as the roads south of Chicago to the Indiana resorts.

Another problem confronting us and on which action should be taken is the establishing of an information bureau and tourist guide. Antioch is primarily a resort town and thousands of dollars are spent here by reporters and their friends. An information bureau is necessary as a means of properly directing motorists to our various resort hotels, lakes, subdivisions, etc.

This bureau can also serve as a tourists' guide in routing transients out of Antioch. Other resort centers have information bureaus. Why not Antioch. It will mean additional business for us all.

Following along these lines, your attention is called to the lack of parking space in this town. It is a problem confronting our village president and town board, a serious problem, and can only be worked out with the assistance of the business club. We haven't enough parking space to take care of the cars in the village and adjacent territory, and when the resorters and tourists arrive pandemonium reigns on our main street. I have and I believe many of you have seen cars drive up and down the street from one end of the town to the other seeking a space to park. Not to find any and drive out of town. Result, loss of business for every car that stops means the purchase of something. No doubt you are busy inside your respective stores selling merchandise, but do you want this business to get away from you.

Likewise a great and good work can be performed by the Antioch Business Club by a renewal of interest in civic matters appertaining to our village. About eight miles southeast of here is a sign erected by the U. S. Rubber Co., informing motorists of the distance to Antioch. But are there any signs on the outskirts of Antioch town limits informing motorists that they are in Antioch and extending a welcome to them. Not one, nor have we done anything to make the approaches to our town attractive. Not a thing, except to allow weeds to grow three or four feet high. Our school grounds are unsightly, particularly our grade school yard. In wet weather it compares favorably with a hog wallow. It is the duty of every citizen and particularly business interests to get behind this movement for improvements. It means better living conditions, better environments for our children. It inculcates in our children, the future business men and women of Antioch, law, order, their responsibility of citizenship. There is an old saying, "The first impression is the lasting one." Are we going to allow the first impression of Antioch to be that of a neglected town or a well kept town. I believe we are all in favor of the latter and will see that we make it that way.

I have left for my last subject, social activities of the Antioch Business Club. Business cannot succeed without the mingling of pleasure, and it is the purpose of this Club to have a liberal sprinkling of pleasure combined with business. We will have various social activities to bring us together and break down any bars of restraint that may now exist, the principal feature being the club-suppers we will have (I hope frequently) at our restaurants and hotels. 'Tis said a woman's way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Let me add to that, there is no better way for a body of men to get together than by putting their feet under a table, rub elbows and go to it at a good meal. Get together meetings result in good fellowship and it is also the earnest wish of many present that the day is not very distant when the Antioch Business Club can have their own club rooms.

It is not our intention to forget the ladies in our social gatherings. We can't get along without them, as evidenced by the good work they have already accomplished in Antioch. We must confess, the ladies have done far more along these lines than the men have.

In closing my remarks I want to say I have faith in the future and opportunities of Antioch and this lake region. If I did not have I would not linger long. Also any statements I have made that may seem to you of a critical nature have been intended as constructive criticism, not destructive. I have no apologies to make. Your officers are willing, but cannot shoulder all of the work and responsibility. It is your business as much as ours. You must help and I know you will.

Remember, we are facing the future, not the past. Let's go.

Swamp Land Case Hearing Again Opened

The case of Rose Gerbracht against Lake county for possession of about 150 acres of swamp land in the region of Gross lake was last week continued by Judge Earl Reynolds of Rockford. Arguments for and against the claim of the woman were heard by the court in the Circuit court.

The plaintiff is seeking to secure title to the 150 acres on the ground that she had been paying taxes on it for several years. She had been assessed taxes on it by the county and therefore took up the matter of securing a clear title to it.

The county claims that the land was first decided by the government to the state, and later by the state to the county.

The case is more or less of a test case as the hopes of many persons, who have settled on land designated as county property, are resting on the decision in the present case. About a half million dollars in all is involved in the legal fight.

Judge Chas. C. Edwards had formerly ordered a decree in the case, but later this was withdrawn and a change of venue taken to Judge Reynolds' court.

by the big fellows for the governor's chair is a mystery. In his last race for the Senate his opponent beat him in his own ward and in his own town, and surely they must know him.

Essington for good roads! If he will vote against them in the senate, what will he do in the governor's chair.

Governor Small on the other hand is all the people could ask a man to be. He has passed up the opportunity to serve the big fellows, and established a road building campaign that has already been brought home to the country folks, Antioch needs no introduction to the good these roads accomplish. It not only makes driving a pleasure, but speeds up business. The writer had this brought home lately when he witnessed a group of small boys trying to "hook" a ride on the big milk wagon from over east. It was all the kids could do to catch it. A real insight to the value of good roads when not far back this same truck could be seen any morning at this time of the year with the double and four horse hitch straining under its heavy pull, just barely creeping down Main street.

Good roads throughout the country will speed up business in the country and, with business we mean the business of farming, also. The greatest evil the farmer has to contend with is mud. Mud increases labor cost, and it is generally conceded that the trouble with the farmer today is labor overhead, including his own.

So there is really but one choice for governor for the country people. Governor Small HAS given the country good roads and is going to give it more, and the beauty of it is the roads are being paid for with automobile fees, and if WGN could have broadcasted anything different you can be assured that the entire world would know it by now.

Once again we have to travel the "mud and waves" of Depot street to get to other trains. A pitiable sight! and worse still, the mud is tracked all over our expensive main street. If the labor energy that has been used up to clean up the mud tracked from this section of town, including the school yard, was expended on this road, we would have a street paved with gold. If the thoughts expressed about this road were concentrated on it the mud would be baked to a concrete hardness.

One of our good democrats says the republicans always argued that they were a lot better than the democrats. Now they are frantically trying to prove the democrats are just as bad as they are.

NEW BUS LINE FOR SOUTHWEST PART OF COUNTY

The Waukegan, Lake Zurich and Chicago Transportation company of Wauconda Incorporated at Springfield, Ill. recently to operate a motor bus line between Wauconda, Lake Zurich and Chicago. The capital stock is $5,000. The incorporators are A. M. Sowers, L. E. Sowers, and Annette Sterling all of Wauconda.

The proposed motor bus line will serve a large number of people living in the southwestern part of Lake county. Up to the present time the transportation facilities between Wauconda, Lake Zurich and Chicago have been far from satisfactory. For years there has been a "little one-horse" railroad that has helped to a certain extent but it has not been dependable enough to satisfy the majority of patrons. It always has been a roundabout route for residents of Wauconda and Lake Zurich to get to Chicago.

The new line, it is figured, will supply a long felt need. The promoters say they are starting in a small way but if the business warrants they will improve the service from time to time.

The Way Candidates Are Picked THE TWO BILLIES PICK AND NOW FIGHT as they try to beat Senator Swift.

Billie Stratton, Small's Fish and Game Commissioner at $4,000 per year, put his appointee, Charles W. Eldredge, "rabbit shepherd" of McHenry County, who is a state employee at $1,800 a year, into the race for state senator to beat Senator Swift.

Billie Smith, Waukegan SUN editor, and Small's self-chosen political boss of Lake County, and State Commerce Commissioner, at $7,000 a year, with a new Packard Limousine that cost $6,000, didn't propose to let Billie Stratton, a four thousand a year man, encroach on his preserves, and so, he selected his young restaurant friend, Leslie George, proprietor of the "Let-George-Do-it" restaurant in Waukegan, to also enter the race for state senator. And so the two Billies fight, and Stratton tries to take his few Eldredge votes in Lake County over to McHenry County for Eldredge, and Billie Smith retaliates by sending George by airplane over McHenry and Boone Counties.

The notion was that the new Packard would so impress the "rubies" of McHenry and Boone that votes would flow to George, but the mud is so deep that the Packard will look like "two-cents," and so an airplane will take "George and his campaign manager over the farms and towns of the rural districts."

Wouldn't George, with his secretary and airplane and with state money make things hum at Springfield? What a change he would be from Senator Swift who "has saved the state millions by his scrutiny of appropriations."

With it all, we make the prediction that Swift will get more votes than both his competitors—Editorial Waukegan Daily News.

WHO'S WHO AND WHY at Springfield

As seen by the editor of the Milk News

Mokena, Ill., March 24th, 1924

Mr. John W. Wirtz,
Area, Illinois.
Dear Mr. Wirtz:

During my eight weeks in Springfield last year protecting the milk farmers, I learned a lot of things regarding the working of our state legislature and the character of the men we sent down there to represent us.

I learned that a new man on either the senate or house floor is just about useless; no one paid much attention to his bills or his opinions.

The Chairman of an important committee told me that it required a third term to really develop a good man, that is, to find out what sort of stuff he was made of, and teach him the game of getting results. I was told that eight or nine men were doing all the real work in the senate and Senator Swift's name was mentioned as one of those few, the rest being mere dummies following along.

When I was at your Farm Bureau picnic I heard a farmer say that he had seen in a paper where it was reported that Swift had made a speech belittling the intelligence of the farmer when the Co-op bill was up. The bill itself as it came from California was an insult to the intelligence of every farmer. Senator Swift spoke for co-operation, but against this bill until it should be amended, and had it not been for his help, we would all be stepping to the tune of that jug-handle, Sapiro, law today. Senator Swift was the only man that had the guts and the know-how to rise and defend us. Senator Swift did time and time again take the floor while I sat in the gallery to protect and defend the interests of the farmer. I can assure you that it will be a real misfortune to the farmers of not alone your district, but my district, and of the whole state, if you fail to return Swift to the state senate.

Yours very cordially,
Clarence M. Cleveland.
